My Mother, My Strength

My mother, a sanctuary of love and care,
Where warmth and comfort are always there.
But when I stray, her gaze can be severe,
A stern reminder to recalibrate and persevere.

In times of turmoil, she's my beacon of hope,
A lifeline that guides me through life's scope.
Her trust in me is like a rope that's strong,
Encouraging me to rise, to right where I belong.

I cherish her presence, her wisdom, and her grace,
And strive to make her proud, to fill her space.
Her eyes, like the sky, are vast and wide,
Reflecting the beauty, the depth, and the pride.

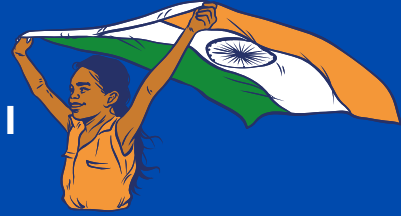

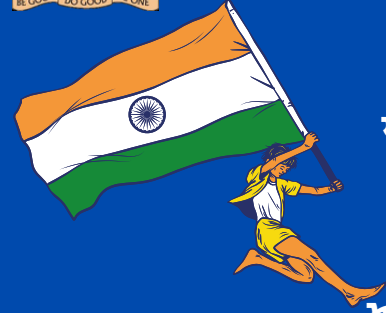

Her mind, a mountain, stands tall and strong,
A symbol of resilience, where love and wisdom belong.
With time, her beauty only grows, like a work of art,
A masterpiece that touches the heart.

A warrior, a guardian, a shield, and a guide,
She protects her children, standing by their side.
Through life's battles, she's a steadfast ally,
A mother's love, pure, unconditional, and spry.

So here's to my mother, a treasure so rare,
A blessing, a gift, beyond compare.
I celebrate her, honor her, and adore,
The incredible woman, who forever I'll explore.
